PLEASE NOTE: Important!

Wilderness travel can be physically demanding. Though prior experience is not required for our treks, good fitness is essential! Depending upon the trip, you will be hiking from four to ten miles on most days (most trips have one or two scheduled layovers) over variably rugged terrain. Or you will be paddling for considerable time periods, sometimes into strong head winds.

Sustained cardiovascular workouts of power walking, running, hiking, bicycling, etc. are strongly recommended; weight training is also very helpful. Beginning and maintaining a regular conditioning program until trip departure will greatly enhance your safety and enjoyment!

If you haven't had a recent physical exam or if you have doubts about your health or fitness, we strongly recommend that you see your physician before the trip.
